UNICEF needs nbsp;$715,000 to pay for the A/H1N1 vaccine in Hong Kong and to keep its life-saving activities going; and nbsp;$1,315,000 for A/H5N1 vaccine to get HK out of the global H5N1 shadow. Hong Kong's strategic stockpile has remained in the shadow of the global stockpile from mid-2007 until May 2009. WHO has to be ready to also go into action with all possible resources to contain the A/H1N1 and A/H5N1 threats. The nbsp;Department of Health (DoH) is challenged with maintaining the capacity of local anti-viral pharmaceutical manufacturing. The A/H5N1 presentation of UNICEF has been scheduled for September, or after the WHO mission to Wuhan in China. UNICEF has been preparing its program for a 9-month period. The campaign is expected to follow our past efforts in Bangladesh, Pakistan, India and Thailand. The post pandemic period is probably the best opportunity to generate more resources for more programmes than ever before. From a public health and humanitarian perspective, A/H1N1 was a wake-up call that the world still has a long way to travel in its readiness for pandemic influenza. Hong Kong will be the place where A/H1N1 is met. The results will certainly be mixed. HK has followed a thorough public education campaign with excellent coordination between the AEC, the DoH and various stakeholders. Some of the lessons learnt include: there was no need to panic and there was no need to make special arrangements for patients and staff in case of the pandemic. Another lesson learnt is to ensure all means of transportation, including ambulances, were prepared. The DoH should have had already a plan to adopt and include pandemic influenza in its emergency plan. It did not, and this could have lead to severe financial losses and increased casualties. In addition to the public education effort, the follow-up services to patients included the distribution of free masks to staff, medical consultations and influenza-like-illness (ILI) examinations. The PITS Viewer After processing is complete, the PITS Viewer is used to optimize the image before it is printed. This is done by clicking on Preview Output in the main menu. The difference in the image quality after use of the PITS Viewer is obvious. Currently there are 5 software options to enhance the image. Diversification: Here in the first software option the image is modified using an adaptive image solution. The software looks at the edges of the print image and evaluates which area has sharpened edges. These sharpened edges are then taken from the next print. This process continues until the edges of all the images are made sharp. To begin you simply select the diversification software and then the magazine you wish to view. Choose the number of pages you wish to preview. If you wish to review all the pages choose to review all. Click on Accept or Cancel on the Output Settings menu. The previewing process may take a short while, depending on the amount of images and the images used on the publication. You can click on the Continue button to begin another preview. Click Save to save the publication. Booklet: In this process the software first evaluates what is inside the sections of the publication. This is done by making a check mark next to the items that are set to show on the front cover, spine and back cover. The next step is to evaluate the images. To begin you select the software from the Software menu and then the publication you wish to view. Then click on the Preview button. The software will make a comparison between the images. If you find that the book does not have enough images in some area, you can evaluate the images available and select to add more. Once you have completed this process you can save the publication. Click on the Continue button to begin another preview. Click Save to save the publication. Mini Pagination: Here you have the option of splitting the publication into sections and then evaluating each area. To begin just select the software from the Software menu and then the publication you wish to preview. Now click on the Preview button. The software will make a comparison between each part of the print and evaluate what is needed to each part. Here you can select what is needed to the front cover, the spine, the back cover and the title page. The sections of the publication can be split further into Pages.
