for intracerebral haemorrhage. The occurrence of aPL in general population studies, however, is less well investigated. We, therefore, determined aPL in a population-based sample of 478 unselected patients with incident, acute ischaemic stroke. In addition, we investigated the frequency of recurrent ischaemic stroke or intracerebral haemorrhage in subjects with and without aPL. The main finding was a high incidence of aPL in patients with ischaemic stroke (12.5%), although an aPL-epidemiological pattern could not be confirmed.

Among patients with ischaemic stroke, aPL-positive patients were younger, more frequently had hyperlipidaemia and had a higher incidence of a previous ischaemic stroke. The RR of a second stroke or intracerebral haemorrhage in patients with aPL was 2.7 (1.5-5.2).

The relative risk of intracerebral haemorrhage was 2.3 in the presence of thrombophilia (n = 8), and 2.5 in patients with hyperlipidaemia (n = 142).

We could find no association between the occurrence of aPL and recurrent stroke. The frequency of aPL in unselected patients with

Is there any method that we can access the id of each element in the list? Thanks A: You can always use forEach to iterate over the collection, and access them by id. However, your assumption that id is available is correct, as it is passed along with the call. document.getElementsByTagName("a").forEach(function(element){ console.log(element.id); }); EDIT As mentioned, this code will only work if you have defined elements with an id. If you have, you can access the id by
