Impressionist Artist
January 21, 2018 (New York - NEW YORK) -
New York-based Impressionist artist Antonia Dardin has been named the winner of the 2017 Herbie Hoffman Legacy Contemporary Arts Prize in conjunction with The Point, the international arts festival staged at The Point in Miami for its 9th year. The award is being presented by the Bert & Maye Fisher Foundation, in partnership with The Point, the non-profit organization founded by Miami Beach developers Bert and Maye Fisher to support the arts through the use of their own personal collection. The 2017 award ceremony will be held on Thursday, January 25, in a series of community events throughout the city of Miami. Dardin's "Cherry Red Flowers" (2016) will be featured as the winner's choice work in The Point's final exhibition for 2017. Dardin, a South African-born artist whose work is rooted in the history and traditions of her ancestral country, stated "After a long time, I thought it was my turn to win. It's an honor to be awarded this prize and represent South Africa - my hometown - where I am born and raised." Dardin has gained international attention for her clean and elegant paintings and photographs of nature. She has exhibited internationally in several solo and group shows in galleries in South Africa, the United States and Europe.

Crafting Dead is meant to be a survival game similar to Dead by Daylight. One of the biggest differences is that in Dead by Daylight, the player is the hero! In Crafting Dead, the player is instead a survivor, the normal guy in Minecraft. This means that the player is starting with limited tools and a lack of equipment. He is going to have to craft items, fight off zombies, and eventually fend off other players.

Albums:
The game is being supported by 4 albums:

- Pre-Alpha - A mostly-unfinished sandbox. Everything can and will be changed!
- Alpha - In the Alpha and Beta phase, there will be bug fixing and content alterations!
- Beta - The soon-to-be-released final product.
- Release - The final product.

Features:

- Map Features - Use the variety of crafting items to create and expand your home. There are 5 different habitats to survive in. Each habitat is open-ended and has it's own environment and items.
- Key Item Features - Each class has it's own set of unique key items they can craft to make themselves stronger. These items can be crafted at your home on any server. - Progression System - Each player has a "Rarity" stat which is determined by how well they perform in combat. This stat can be changed throughout the game as a player develops. A perfect player is supposed to be high-end veteran! - Inventory - Each player has a backpack. The contents of your backpack is locked until the player clicks it and opens it. This means that there is no cheating! It also means that item distribution will be random on pickup! - Customization - Players can craft additional items in their "Armor" inventory. These additional items can be bought and sold with the in-game currency called "Currency". - PvP - Players will be able to fight other players on a PvP server. Players on a PvP server are not influenced by the healing items. - Social Features - Each player will have it's own

---

"Social Center" which keeps a record of their friends, their total kill count, and the number of friends they have on a server. This is a place for players to meet. - Open World - Each player can go wherever they like on the map. This means that if a player has a weapon, they can go to another player, craft that weapon, and go kill them. If a player isn't looking for combat, they can c9d1549cdd

What's new:

The Jade Sea Region is home to a collection of people, cultures and terrain that make up the Jade Sea. The area has been in the continuous possession of the Zhang Gong family for many generations. The Zhang Gong family used to control territory near a port town called Nangong Chiao (or Nangong Shu). Eventually, the Zhang family were relocated along with the people when the Huangtu District was formed. When Kan Shi, a descendant of the Zhang Gong family, first established Zhang Gong Prefecture, he came across an artifact. The artifact has a unique nature which incorporates all elements of the Jade Sea Region. Some sources on this artifact go to great lengths to explain the phenomenon. In Late Antiquity, when China was divided into five major powers, the Tang Chinese government was encroaching on the Chang'an region. As a result, the Zhang Gong family rose to prominence and became nobles in the Qin State. Their descendants would eventually be forced to relocate. When the Huangtu District was formed in the Qin State, the Zhang Gong family moved to a village near Huangtulou (or Huangshilou), and established the Zhang Gong Prefecture. The Zhang Gong Prefecture is a prefectural district in the Qin State. It is one of the ten counties in Feng County and has boundaries reaching as far as to the border with Han Province. The architecture within the prefecture is a unique style that is called Zhang Gong Style. The locals would have a bad reputation with outsiders when they weren't being generous to them. The Zhang Gong Prefecture is named after them. The area occupied by the Zhang Gong Prefecture is known as the Jade Sea Region. The Jade Sea Region is famous for its splendid scenery and an abundance of local specialties. Being a remote area, the people here cherish their culture and are very reluctant to be influenced by outsiders. The common folk in this area are traditionally believed to be all descendants of a man who had a terrifying aura around him. Some would say that he had been a powerful warlord that roamed this region ages ago. In the past, there used to be maidens in the area who would battle against the lord. Generally, the men and women of the area are single people who are usually carefree. Most of them don't have any wives and there are no children found in
