Super Street Fighter IV Arcade Edition - Sony Playstation 3 PS3 .In a conventional mail processing device, a desired message is received and stored in a memory provided within the device. When it is desired to send the message, an indication thereof is provided to a printer which is also part of the device. The printer prints the information, e.g. an address or a signature, onto the envelope, along with other information, which may be supplemented by a packing list, and the envelope is then placed into a mail box. Problems with this arrangement include the fact that, because the printer must be provided separately from the device, the printing is not very accurate. Another problem with this device is that it does not provide any means for returning to a previous message if the mail is not sent successfully.package
